I. Objectives

This survey was designed to achieve the following objectives:

- Assist the World Bank in gaining a better understanding of how stakeholders in The Gambia perceive the Bank;
- Obtain systematic feedback from stakeholders in The Gambia regarding:
 - Their views regarding the general environment in The Gambia;
 - Their perceived overall value of the World Bank in The Gambia;
 - Overall impressions of the World Bank as related to programs, poverty reduction, personal relationships, effectiveness, knowledge base, collaboration, and its day-to-day operation;
 - Perceptions of the World Bank's future role in The Gambia; and
 - Perceptions of the World Bank's communication and outreach in The Gambia.
- Use data to help inform The Gambia country team's strategy.

II. Methodology

In January thru March 2012, 250 stakeholders of the World Bank in The Gambia were invited to provide their opinions on the Bank's assistance to the country by participating in a country survey. Participants in the survey were drawn from among the office of the President, Prime Minister, Minister, or Parliamentarian; employees of a ministry, ministerial department, or implementation agency; local government officials or staff; federal/central government; bilateral or multilateral agencies; private sector; NGOs (including CBOs); the media; independent government institutions; trade unions; faith-based groups; academia or research institutes; and the judiciary. A total of 150 stakeholders participated in the country survey (60%).

Respondents received the questionnaire via post and returned it accordingly. Respondents were asked to indicate: their overall attitudes toward the Bank; the importance of specific areas of the Bank's work and the Bank's effectiveness in those areas; and their level of agreement with a series of statements about the way the World Bank does business. Respondents were also asked about general issues facing The Gambia, the Bank's future role in The Gambia, and the Bank's communication and outreach efforts in The Gambia.

II. Methodology (continued)

The questionnaire was broken into eight sections:

1. Background Information: The first section asked respondents for their current position, specialization, familiarity and involvement with the Bank, and geographic location.
2. General Issues facing The Gambia: Respondents were asked to indicate what they thought were the most important development priorities and which areas would contribute most to poverty reduction and economic growth in The Gambia, as well as rating their optimism for the next generation in The Gambia.
3. Overall Attitudes toward the World Bank: Respondents were asked to rate the Bank's overall effectiveness, the extent to which the Bank's financial instruments and knowledge services fulfilled The Gambia's needs, and their agreement with various statements regarding the Bank's programs, poverty mission, relationships, and collaborations in The Gambia. Respondents were also asked to indicate the areas they perceived as the Bank's priorities, the areas on which it would be most productive for the Bank to focus its resources and research, what the Bank's level of involvement should be, what they felt were the Bank's greatest values and greatest weaknesses in its work, and with which groups the Bank should work more in The Gambia.
4. The Work of the World Bank: Respondents were asked to rate their level of importance and the Bank's level of effectiveness across twenty-four areas in which the Bank was involved, such as helping to reduce poverty, helping to bring about macro-economic growth, and fighting against corruption.
5. The Way the World Bank does Business: Respondents were asked to rate the Bank's level of effectiveness in the way it does business, including the Bank's knowledge, personal relationships, collaborations, and poverty mission.
6. Project/Program Related Issues: Respondents were asked to rate their level of agreement with a series of statements regarding the Bank's programs, day-to-day operations, and collaborations in The Gambia.
7. The Future of the World Bank in The Gambia: Respondents were asked to rate the extent to which the Bank will play a significant role in The Gambia's development over the medium term. Respondents were also asked to indicate what the Bank could do to make itself of greater value in The Gambia and to what they attribute reform effort failures.
8. Communication and Outreach: Respondents were asked to indicate where they get information about development issues, the Bank's development activities in The Gambia, and their preferred mode to receive information from the Bank. Respondents were asked their awareness of the Bank's new Access to Information Policy and about their past information requests. Respondents were also asked to indicate their Internet access and usage of the Bank's website, and to evaluate the Bank's websites, Knowledge Space, and communication and outreach efforts.

III. Demographics of the Sample

- Ratings across all stakeholder groups and geographic locations can be found in the Appendix.

VI. Overall Impressions of the World Bank (continued)

Drivers of Effectiveness

To determine the key drivers of respondents' ratings of the Bank's overall effectiveness in The Gambia, bivariate correlational analyses were conducted on respondents' ratings of the Bank's overall effectiveness in The Gambia with respondents' ratings of the twenty-four specific areas of effectiveness.

Correlational analyses, however, are not able to tell us exactly what is causing respondents' ratings of the Bank's overall effectiveness. Rather, these analyses tell us that as ratings of effectiveness in one area increase, respondents' ratings of the Bank's overall effectiveness increase. Thus, it can be inferred that respondents' perceptions of effectiveness in one specific area are related to, or drive, respondents' perceptions of the Bank's overall effectiveness.

- Those specific areas with the highest Pearson Product-Moment correlations were determined to be the most closely related to perceptions of the Bank's overall effectiveness, suggesting that ratings of effectiveness in those specific areas are drivers of perceptions of the Bank's overall effectiveness. The areas determined to be key drivers from these analyses were:
 - The Bank's effectiveness at helping to reduce poverty and
 - The Bank's effectiveness at helping to strengthen the public financial management and procurement system.

Importance versus Effectiveness – Sector Analysis

By plotting respondents' ratings of importance versus effectiveness, one can assess where respondents perceived the Bank to be performing well on priority issues in The Gambia, as well as areas in which respondents perceived the Bank to not be performing so well on priority issues, areas in which respondents perceived the Bank was performing well, but on lower priority issues, and areas in which respondents perceived the Bank to not be performing so well on lower priority issues.

- Bank relatively good and issue is a priority: Areas in this quadrant are those that respondents indicated a high level of importance and gave the Bank a relatively high rating of effectiveness (although it should be noted that ratings of effectiveness were nearly two points lower than ratings of importance). It is important that the Bank continue to do well in these areas (in order of mean importance):
 - Helping to reduce poverty;
 - Helping to increase access and quality of basic education;
 - Helping to strengthen the agricultural sector/food security;
 - Helping to bring about macro-economic growth;
 - Helping to strengthen higher education;
 - Helping to improve the investment climate for private sector growth and attracting foreign investment;
 - Helping to strengthen the public financial management and procurement system; and
 - Helping to increase access and quality of health services, including the fight against HIV/AIDS and other communicable diseases.

- Bank not so good on priority issues: Areas in this quadrant were those for which respondents indicated a high level of importance, but gave the Bank a relatively low rating of effectiveness. These were just three areas in this quadrant:
 - Helping to increase professional skills, employment and income generation, specifically for young people (although this is on the borderline of the Bank being good);
 - Helping to improve basic infrastructure (although this is on the borderline of the Bank being good); and
 - Helping to strengthen the government's effectiveness.
- Bank not so good, but issue not perceived to be a priority: Areas in this quadrant were those for which respondents gave the Bank a relatively low rating of effectiveness and a moderate level of importance. These areas were (in order of mean importance):
 - Helping to strengthen the fisheries sector (although this is on the borderline of being more of a priority);
 - Helping to strengthen the capacity of civil society and private sector organizations;
 - Helping to empower local communities;
 - Helping to improve the quality of life in urban areas;
 - Helping to integrate The Gambia into the global and/or sub-regional economy;
 - Helping to improve the legal and regulatory systems;
 - Helping to improve nutrition for vulnerable groups;
 - Fighting against corruption;
 - Helping to strengthen environment and natural resources management;
 - Help strengthening the national statistical system (although this is on the borderline of the Bank being good);
 - Helping The Gambia adapt to/avert risk of climate change; and
 - Ensuring that attention is paid to gender disparities (although this is on the borderline of the Bank being good).
- Bank good, but issue not perceived to be a priority: Areas in this quadrant were those for which respondents indicated a moderate level of importance, but gave the Bank a relatively high rating of effectiveness. There was just one area in this quadrant:
 - Helping to expand internet connectivity.

Respondents were asked a variety of questions regarding the Bank's programs, poverty mission, personal relationships, collaborations/partnerships, knowledge, and day-to-day operations.

- There were several instances in which there were significant differences between stakeholder groups in their ratings of the Bank across these areas. For the most part, employees of ministries and respondents from independent government institutions, academia, and other organizations tended to have the highest ratings whereas respondents from the office of the President, bilateral or multilateral agencies, and NGOs tended to have the lowest ratings. Those areas for which there were significant stakeholder group differences were:
 - “Overall the Bank currently plays a relevant role in development in The Gambia”;
 - “The Bank’s work is aligned with what I consider the development priorities for this country”;
 - “The Bank’s work reflects its own mission of poverty reduction”;
 - “The World Bank collaborates with other donors here”;
 - “The World Bank is responsive”;
 - “The Bank is an effective catalyst for discussion on issues related to poverty”;
 - “In general, the strategies that the Bank recommends are sustainable over time”;
 - “The World Bank’s work promotes country ownership of development strategies”;
 - “Ability to adapt its knowledge to your country’s needs”;
 - “Ensuring its staff is accessible”;
 - “Providing sound policy and economic advice”;
 - “Straightforwardness in its dealings with you”;
 - “Maintaining consistent messages”;
 - “Promoting the inclusion of local communities in the development of strategies”;
 - “Promoting the inclusion of civil society in the development of strategies”;
 - “Promoting the inclusion of local project experts in the development of strategies”;
 - “Promoting the inclusion of private sector in the development of strategies”;
 - “The Bank disburses funds promptly”;
 - “The Bank helps to build capacity at the community level”; and
 - “The Bank helps to build capacity of government officials”.

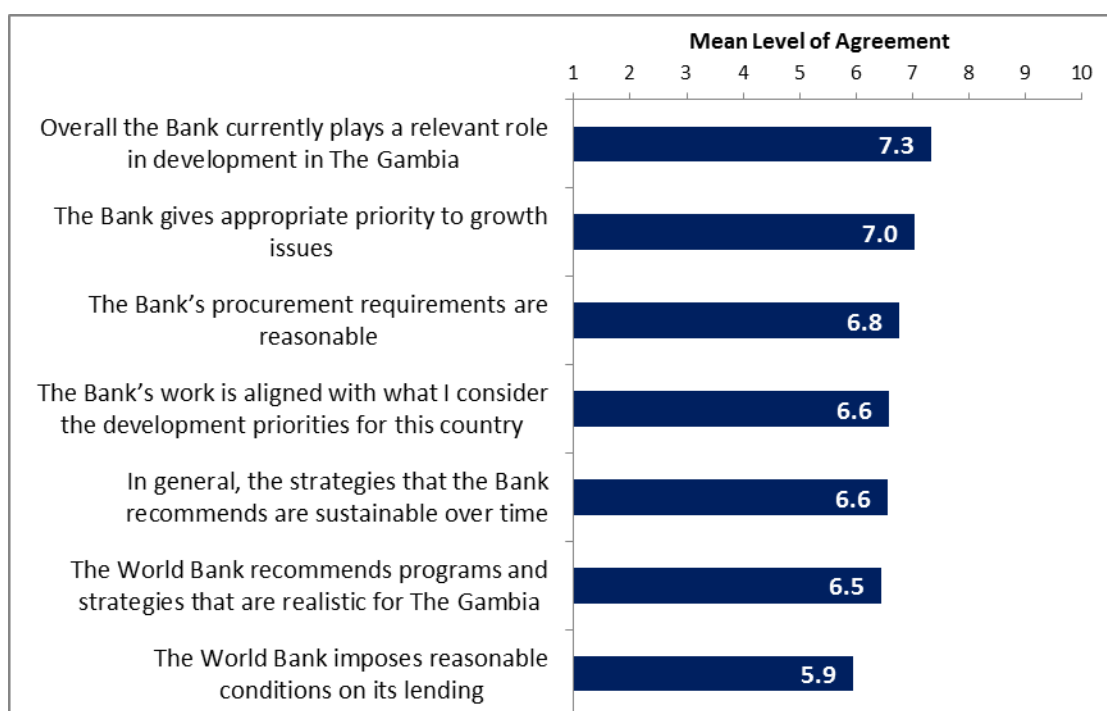

VI. Overall Impressions of the World Bank (continued)

- There were significant differences between geographic locations in their ratings of the Bank across four of these areas.
 - Respondents from the West Coast had the highest ratings for the Bank's effectiveness at "The Bank effectively monitors and evaluates the projects and programs it supports", "The Bank helps to strengthen institutional capacity", and "The Government supports and takes responsibility for development efforts in The Gambia" whereas respondents from Other areas had significantly lower ratings for the Bank's effectiveness; and
 - Respondents from the West Coast had significantly higher ratings for the Bank's effectiveness at "The Bank's procurement requirements are reasonable" compared to respondents from Banjul and Other areas.

Appendix D: World Bank Client Survey 2012

World Bank Client Survey FY12 -- THE GAMBIA

The World Bank is interested in gauging the views of clients and partners who are either involved in development in The Gambia or who observe activities related to social and economic development. The following survey is meant to give the Bank's team that works in The Gambia, more in-depth insight into how the Bank's work is perceived. This is one tool the Bank uses to assess the views of its critical stakeholders. With this understanding, the World Bank hopes to develop more effective strategies, outreach and programs that support development in The Gambia.

The World Bank commissioned an independent consultant to oversee the logistics of this effort in The Gambia. This ensures anonymity and confidentiality. We hope you'll be candid. To complete the survey, please circle the number that most accurately reflects your answer. If you prefer not to answer a question, please leave it blank.
