Sampling

Sampling Procedure

Households:

The sample for the baseline is representative at the national level and is based on a stratified two-stage sampling method.

The sampling frame was the enumeration areas (EA) of 2007 General Population and Housing Census of the Republic of Congo.

At the first stage, 312 EAs were drawn proportionally to their size. All EAs selected were subject to a comprehensive household count.

At the second stage, 25 households were drawn in each EA of which:

- 20 households meeting the eligibility criteria (households with at least one pregnant woman or one non-pregnant woman at the time of the survey with a child born during the two years preceding the survey);
- 5 households meeting the criteria to be classified as a poor household, in addition to the abovementioned eligibility criteria.

A total of 7,800 households in all departments of the Congo were expected to be surveyed in 312 EAs sampled.

Health facilities:

The health facility survey was carried out in all 285 primary care facilities and all district hospitals in the country. A sample of health workers, patient-caregiver observations and client interviews was selected. All survey visits were unannounced.

Questionnaires
