Sampling

Sampling Procedure

---

The survey was conducted with a self-selected, nonprobability sample. LGBTI people are a hard-to-reach population with at least two characteristics that make standard random sampling procedures inappropriate: the absence of a sampling frame (i.e., the characteristics of the total population are unknown) and the strong need for privacy protection. As a result, it cannot be said that respondents to the survey represent the LGBTI population as a whole. To address this concern, at least in part, the sample was weighted based on a study of the literature. The structure of LGBTI respondents by country is provided in the survey report.

Weighting

Representative surveys of LGBTI populations are difficult to conduct due to the small percentage of adults who identify as LGBTI. Weighting can adjust sample characteristics to population targets to correct over- and/or under-sampled groups. The challenge for populations not measured in administrative surveys (e.g., a census) or large-N studies is that these targets are unknown.

Additional details on weighting are provided in Annex 1 of the survey report.

Data Collection

Data Collection Dates

Start	End	Cycle

Data Collection Mode

Computer Assisted Personal Interview [capi]

DATA COLLECTION NOTES

Data collection method. Data collection was made possible by programming the questionnaire in all local languages using IPSOS's own data entry program. All the logical checks in the questionnaire were implemented. The data collection program guaranteed full protection of respondents' privacy and confidentiality, facilitating their participation in the survey.

The CAWI (Computer Assisted Web Interviewing) method of data collection was used. CAWI makes it possible to conduct interviews through a website or via e-mail to collect information on the characteristics and attitudes of respondents. The questionnaire appears in the browser as a webpage. Responses are sent directly to a server, so the results of the research and data collection can be continuously monitored.

The survey was available in all the main web browsers, including Internet Explorer, Mozilla Firefox, Chrome, Safari, and Opera, and was adjusted for use on different types of devices—desktop computers, personal computers/laptops, tablets, and smartphones.

Ethnic origin - Please specify how often the people are discriminated based upon (c1_1)

File: fra_public_use

The following series of questions are about discrimination targeting gay, lesbian, bisexual, trans and intersex people. Please take your time to fill these in. By discrimination we mean when somebody is treated less favourably than others because of a specific personal feature such as their age, gender, gender identity, sexual orientation, minority background or for any other reason. For example, discrimination can occur when a woman is not given an equal opportunity to be promoted in her job in comparison with a man, although she is equally suitable and experienced. Discrimination also occurs when persons who are in unequal position are being treated in the same (equal) way. For instance, persons with disabilities are in unequal position in comparison to persons without disabilities. In other words, discrimination is unequal treatment of equals and equal treatment of unequal's.
