ABSTRACT

The Data was collected by the Research Unit on the Economics of Excisable Products at the University of Cape Town. The project collects prices of cigarettes sold at retail outlets and from street vendors in a number of African countries. The aim is to create a retail cigarette price dataset to enable researchers to make estimations about price differences in these countries, between brands, in urban and rural settlements, and over time. The Round 10 - 12 data is embargoed until 1 April 2023 at the request of the REEP researchers.

VERSION NOTES

Version 1.2: All previous rounds and data files of the ACP were harmonized and combined into a single data series. Version 1.2 covered rounds 1-7. Prior to version 1.2 rounds were released separately.

Version 1.3: Round 8 was added. This round was undertaken between June and August 2019.

Version 1.4: Round 9 was added. This round was undertaken between November 2019 and February 2020.

Version 1.5: Round 10 was added. This round was undertaken in 2021.

Version 1.6: Rounds 11-12 were added. These rounds were undertaken in 2022. Rounds 11-12 are embargoed for researchers beyond the REEP team until April 2023 after which Rounds 1-12 will be publicly available. Please contact us on support@data1st.org if you have queries.

Scope

NOTES

The study collected data on prices of cigarettes from retail outlets and street vendors in several African countries.

Coverage

GEOGRAPHIC COVERAGE

The countries included in the study are: Botswana, Cameroon, Chad, Eswatini, Ethiopia, Ghana, Kenya, Lesotho, Madagascar, Malawi, Mauritius, Mozambique, Namibia, Nigeria, South Africa, Tanzania, Uganda, Zambia, and Zimbabwe. Not all countries are covered in all rounds.

GEOGRAPHIC UNIT

The data was collected at the level of retailer (often including GPS coordinates of the retail outlet). However, the lowest level of geographic detail available in the public use dataset is Suburb.

UNIVERSE

The study covered cigarette prices of retailers (including street vendors) in selected African countries.

SUPERVISION

The Project received ethics approval for data collection from the Ethics Committee of the Faculty of Commerce at the University of Cape Town on the 8th of October 2015.

DATA COLLECTION NOTES

For this project, the Research Unit on the Economics of Excisable Products organised for University of Cape Town students from different African countries to visit retail outlets and street vendors in their countries, where cigarettes were sold, and obtained permission to take photographs of cigarette packages using their cellphones.

Fieldworkers working in the same areas were put in contact to avoid duplication of effort. As such, it is reasonable to assume that duplication was largely avoided and that a store being interviewed twice in one round occurred quite rarely if at all. Students were somewhat self-governing in their choice of areas to visit and stores from which to gather data. How the student groups covering an area divided up that area has not been well documented. As such, there may be geographic bias, for example against poorer areas that are more difficult to interview. This also means that a given interviewer might repeat whatever bias/mistakes they tend to make over all the rounds (if they remained on the project) making any bias hard to detect. In some cases the same store (retailer/spaza shop/street vendor) was interviewed in more than one round of data collection.

DATA EDITING

Data collected by REEP was in excel format and not serialised. Datafirst has serialised and cleaned the data to create a research-ready series. Appending the rounds required harmonising variable names. The brand names (eg Marborough) and sub-brands (eg gold) required significant cleaning due to typos and errors in data collection. Some observations with bad values (around 20) were dropped from the final dataset.
