ABSTRACT
The main objective of the Socio-Economic Vulnerability Assessment Tool (SEVAT) is to provide the basis of a revision of UNHCR's refugee vulnerability targeting model, focusing on socio-economic vulnerability indicators among refugee households living in Iraq. The data collected includes household-level demographic and socio-economic information related to basic well-being and needs among refugee households, with the purpose of facilitating the identification of vulnerabilities among refugee households in camp vs. out-of-camp settings, and geographic areas for assistance targeting.

Sampling

SAMPLING PROCEDURE

This study covered three governorates (Duhok, Sulaymaniyah, Erbil) and Centre-South through in-person data collection by REACH enumerators, building on a simple random sampling approach that allows findings to be statistically representative with a level of confidence of 95% and a margin of error of 5%. Due to the low presence of registered refugees in several governorates of Federal Iraq, these governorates were merged together into the Centre-South strata following consultation with UNHCR, and in line with the approach used in the MSNA assessment.
